Arriving in Prague

By Plane

You can fly directly to the Prague airport (PRG). From the airport, you can take public transport bus n. 119, change to green line subway at Veleslavín (end stop) and then change to red line subway at Muzeum which will take you directly to the subway station Vyšehrad. This journey will take you approx. 55 mins.

You can buy a public transportation ticket (valid for all subway, bus, and tram lines) at the airport in arrival halls in both terminals. Look for "Public transport information center" (open between 7:00 and 21:00, more info here at https://pid.cz/en/for-tourists/how-do-i-get-from/vaclav-havel-airport/). The cost of a 90-minute ticket is 32 CZK (approx. 1.25 EUR, you can pay with card or CZK cash) which is enough time to get to the hotel. Other lengths of tickets are available too (more info at https://pid.cz/en/for-tourists/what-ticket-should-i-use/).

Alternatively you can take a taxi (around 35 EUR) or an Uber (around 25 EUR), which takes approx. 35 mins, depending on the traffic.

By Train

You can also travel to Prague by train, you will arrive at the main train station, Praha Hlavní Nádraží from which you can take direct red line subway to the station Vyšehrad.

By Bus

In case you arrive to Prague by bus, you will most likely arrive at the Florenc bus station, from which you can also take direct red line subway to the station Vyšehrad.

Currency, weather, and things to see

In the Czech Republic we have Czech Crowns (CZK) currency, but you can pay almost anywhere with a credit/debit card (but there are still some restaurants / places where you need cash). Usual price for a meal outside of tourist spots is 150-200 CZK (around 6-7 EUR).

Weather in Prague is relatively cold, winter weather all February long, with an average overall temperature of 1°C (33°F) with occasional rainy and snowy days throughout the month.

Prague, Nicknamed "the City of a Hundred Spires," it's known for its Old Town Square, the heart of its historic core, with colorful baroque buildings, Gothic churches and the medieval Astronomical Clock, which gives an animated hourly show.
